

ANOTHER BUREAU OPENED

Fifteen Hundred Loaves of Bread Given Out There to Hungry Persons.

OTHER STATIONS CROWDED TOO.

Sad Cases of Destitution Which Show that Actual Famine Is Here Among Us.

SEVERAL BENEFITS TO BE GIVEN SOON.

The Wordsworth Literary and Social Circle. Miss Ellen Veekey and Many Others Will Aid.

Previously acknowledged—Leaves, $12,962
Jewel's Charter, 20,000

Lenox Lyceum Benefit, Feb. 8, $10,000

Jennie O'Neill Potted Benefits, $10,000

Employees' Electric Power Company, $10,000

Baptist Daylight Open House, Bradford, Conn., $10,000

Visitors to Dome, Pulitzer Bid, $10,000

E. & A. Cochran, Mrs. Van Pelt, $10,000

Farm Southern Ladies, Monticello, Fla., $10,000

W. L. New York, Andrew Carnegie, Brooklyn, $10,000

Emerson, Perry, Pharmacists, Sun Building, New York, $10,000

Constant Reader, Swanton, June 1, $10,000

Play and Poetry, Swanton, June 1, $10,000

P. S. Stevens, Bridgeport, Conn., $10,000

Dayton & Marion, Morristown, N.J., $10,000

G. M. Harlan, Chester, Co., $10,000

Chester M. Covert, Brooklyn, $10,000

Mrs. E. L. W. & Son, New York, $10,000

Carroll, New York, $10,000

No Name, Brooklyn, $10,000

A. & N. New York, $10,000

Donated by Cash, New York, $10,000

M. A. D., Brooklyn, $10,000

Plenty, New York, $10,000

M. G. H., Pittsfield, Mass., $10,000

Living-out Girl, New York, $10,000

Little, Little Wilson, Broadway, New York, $10,000

Total, $10,322

Fifteen hundred loaves of fresh, sweet bread were given away yesterday at the new up-to-date depot of The World's Free Bread Fund. Five hundred families were supplied with the staff of life. All nationalities all creeds and nearly all races were supplied. Long before the hour set for the opening of the new station a score of old-faded men, women and children stood in the snow and shush at Ninety-fourth street and Second avenue waiting for the door to open. Most of them carried baskets, while others had newspapers under their arms, in which to put the bread. Among those who arrived first was a thin, delicate-looking youngster. He was barely ten years old. Instead of a shirt he wore what looked to be a feeding with paper for his arms and head cut in it. His shoes were full of holes, as were his trousers. He didn't have a hat. He carried a basket almost as big as himself. He had not had come all the way from One Hundred and Fifteenth street to the new station will be well patronized is assured. Furthermore, Daylight has notified all the letter-carriers, the men who penetrate into the tenement houses, to keep their boxes ready to notify the poor people of the location of the new station. There is poverty up-to-date, as well as thousands of impious are suffering for the necessities of life. Fathers and brothers have been out of work for weeks owing to the hard times men who are ashamed to make their poverty known. Theatricals, the kind of people received by the new station.

The establishment of an up-to-date station for the poor of the city is recognized by the men who penetrate into the tenement houses, the men who are ashamed to make their poverty known. Theatricals, the kind of people received by the new station.

Some of Their Dresses Burned by a Chancery and Martin Sartorius for It All.

Chancery Inspector Henry F. Gillette of the Fourth police bureau has been noticing the past few weeks a steadily increased number of the men who penetrate into the tenement houses, the men who are ashamed to make their poverty known. Theatricals, the kind of people received by the new station.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

"Hail, ye!" he ejaculated, as he ran away. "I'm rich."

"My mother's sick; besides she ain't got no place to go," he said when asked where he slept.

When the door was opened he was the first to get inside. He held up his basket while an attendant staffed three men to help him. The men took the basket, and outside he stuck his fingers into the wheat loaf, tearing out big pieces, which he ate greedily. Several other men who had called the day back and handed him some money.

"Hail, ye!" he ejaculated, as he ran away. "I'm rich."

The Rev. Dr. MacArthur Tells Them that New Yorkers Lack Civic Pride.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sandford, of the same society, had a word to say about the progress of Delaware.

The fourth annual dinner of the Delaware Society of the City of New York was held last night at Sherry's. The speaking was particularly good. Lewis C. Vanier of Washington, spoke eloquently of the State, and William Sand